

CIS 251: C++ Programming

This course is an introduction to the C++ programming language including object-oriented programming. Topics include problem solving and design; control structures; objects and events; user interface construction; and document and program testing. Students must complete this course with at least a "C" average.

Credits: 3

Prerequisites:

CIS 191.

Program: Computer Information Systems